through. But I do have a deal for you. I just was wondering if you and I go for a walk around and around the Capitol at noon hour, and when I get tired I'll find a golf court...cart and you can keep walking, and I'm going to wear you out till at least 1:30, and I'll gain an hour and a half on your stamina. So with that, I oppose to indefinitely postpone.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Wehrbein Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Mr. President. Senator Wehrbein, I want to tell you that I'm going to be doing something over the noon hour much more strenuous and draining on me than what you suggested. I'm going to be dealing with some rural senators who can't make up their mind on redistricting. And I promised them a way out. They cannot decide which district which senator has to go, and I...I offered to do it. I am the hatchet man. I don't delight in that, but when things have to be done, somebody has got to do them. We cannot halt forever between two opinions. A decision has to be taken, and I'm the one who can do it and will do it. And there will be a wound, but the wound will heal, and I'm like those high tech surgeons who will use a laser device which, as it makes an incision, heals and stops the bleeding. There will not be a lot of bleeding and the person will not even know that he or she has been eliminated until it is appropriate for that knowledge to come. But that's what I will be doing over the noon hour and I will be as rigid in fighting for what we have agreed to, with reference to redistricting, as I am going to be in fighting for what I believe in this situation. Where children are concerned, it is not too difficult to engage my attention. Where children are mistreated, it does not take much effort to enlist my aid in behalf of ending that mistreatment of children. The same thing, to some extent, about women. And since this is not a motion really to kill the bill, I have an article I want to read that confirms what I was telling you all about the dismissive manner in which women are dealt with and no woman holds a position of finality. This was in the morning World-Herald and it says, "White House: Whitman confused on oil drilling." This is where the Bush administration humiliated this woman. I've seen where white men in his administration have said the wrong thing and
